

Medical Writer/Senior Medical Writer (HR083)

We are currently looking for motivated and dynamic individuals with a life science degree (preferably with a PhD) to join our enthusiastic and friendly editorial team. The successful candidates will demonstrate excellent written and verbal communication skills, be proactive, with a good eye for detail, and demonstrate good organisational and project management abilities. Previous medical writing experience is not essential for the Medical Writer role, but candidates should have the ability and potential to produce high-quality writing. From the start, you will also have the opportunity to work directly with clients and physicians. For the Senior Medical Writer role a minimum of 2–3 years of medical writing experience, acquired in a communications agency or industry environment, is required. The ability to work in a team environment is essential and the position will involve a close working relationship with clients and medical experts. There may be the opportunity for international travel.
